OPEN HEARTS. OPEN MINDS. OPEN DOORS.

The Stars and Stripes By Kathy Hawkins

The lonely flag pole in the middle of the greens
Stands tall watching over the land without even a slight lean

The red and white stripes remember those tears
Of wars that brought this country many fears

Stars of white on a background of blue Flies high for those states from old to new

Some call her Old Glory as she shows her wave
Fighting for the freedom and home of the brave

One person alone cannot bring peace to all
It takes a country joining together to answer that call

As the breeze moves this flag for all to see Asking that we turn us and them into we

Yes we are the people filled with pride in our hearts
Working together to make this country one instead of parts

Remember our history but build on that beginning Divisions no more, only help each other to be winning

Our flag as she flies is the same across this country so vast
Let us be neighbors and friends and write a new past

Keep our stars and stripes flying for all the years to come
She flies for all in the country, not just for some

Let your heart feel the love of this beautiful land
That she stands to protect with each caring hand

Thank you to Kathy Hawkins for her beautiful and inspirational words! Let us all be leaders of unity and stop this movement of division in our great land!!

One Nation Under God!!

Paul says to us today – “and remember to what we were called.”

What is that calling? To be like God. To love like Christ. Our initial reaction is to recoil, to raise our hands in defeat and declare that this is something beyond the realm of possibility. How in the world can I act like God? How can I love like Christ? Yet it is our goal to become like Christ. That’s the name we have taken – Christian, little Christ. That’s the road we are on. But since we are striving to imitate God, then we also imitate God’s grace, with ourselves and certainly, with everyone else around us.

KIND
But become kind to one another,
COMPASSIONATE
tenderly compassionate,
FORGIVING
freely forgiving one another
just as God also by Christ freely forgave you.

Every fourth week of November, we tell ourselves that Thanksgiving should not just be a once-a-year thing, but a way of living every day. In our scripture today - Ephesians 5:15-20 is a call to remember that belief. “giving thanks to God the Father at all times.” At all times! This isn’t just about being thankful for food and plentiful harvests. It is about finding blessings in everyday living. It is a call to move our thinking away from what we think we don’t have toward what we have already been blessed with. It is shifting from a scarcity mindset into a realization of the abundance of God’s providence. But even as we do so, we must also take time to acknowledge that there are many who are left out of the abundance, not because of the lack of resources, but due to unequal distribution. That is why we are invited to share what we have, so that all might have something. How do we give thanks at all times? By living our gratitude each and every day.

BE VERY CAREFUL,
THEN, HOW YOU LIVE -
not as UNWISE but as WISE, MAKING OF EVERY ONE
the most OPPORTUNITY
BECAUSE THE DAYS ARE EVIL.
THEREFORE DO NOT BE FOOLISH. UNDERSTAND what the LORD'S will is. EPHESIANS 5:15-17

All Parish Combined Worship to Celebrate VBS

Where: Dexter UMC. Time: 10:00 am

Today we gather in His name as we celebrate our amazing children. For the last couple of days our kids have gathered with the knowledge that not only does God provide for our physical needs but His also gives us provisions to nourish our spiritual self. We receive His nourishment through the power of prayer.

Today we center our focus on being doers of the word. This isn’t about works of righteousness, but about living out the salvation we have received by grace through faith. In part, we are asking, “You’ve been saved or claimed by Christ, so what now? How will your life be different, look different, act different because of that primary relationship? What influence does faith have on your actions?” In one sense, we are still the same – human, fallible, sinful. But in another sense, we are new creations, ready to embrace a new reality of living. Whether we’ve done this now for years or whether we are newly minted followers of Jesus, we continually ask ourselves how – “is it with our souls” and with our living these days.

Tell Faith-Filled Fish Tales

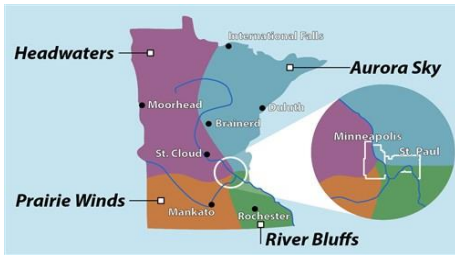

Fishing stories. We’ve all heard them. “It was this big.” “You should have seen the one that got away.” People love to tell stories of their fishing adventures. When it comes to faith, however, most people clam up. Why is it we can’t talk about what God has done in our lives as naturally as we can spin fishing tales?

In this six-session companion study to the “Go Fish” Andy Stanley explores the motivation behind sharing our faith. Discover God’s heart for those who don’t know Him and the role that we can play in introducing others to Him. Along the way you will be equipped with tools that will help you make sharing your faith a natural part of your life.

Story Behind the Book

Andy Stanley, senior pastor of three North Point Ministries campuses, with a cumulative congregation of more than twenty thousand, has had countless conversations with everyday Christians who struggle to share their faith with confidence and ease. Though not everyone has “the gift,” evangelism is something we’re each called to. This curriculum was designed to take the fear out of sharing the good news of Christ, and to help you talk about it as naturally as you would that exciting fishing trip last weekend!

Four new districts take effect July 1, make way for diversity and innovation

On July 1, the Minnesota Conference will formally move from five to four districts, each of which has a new name:

- Headwaters (northwest): Superintended by Rev. Becky Jo Messenbrink
- Aurora Sky (northeast): Superintended by Rev. Laurie Kantonen
- Prairie Winds (southwest): Superintended by Rev. Dr. Woojae Im
- River Bluffs (southeast): Superintended by Rev. Michelle Hargrave

Each district will include a mix of urban, suburban, and rural churches. The district lines have been redrawn, with the new lines moving through and across what is now the Twin Cities District.

For the past two years, the Minnesota Conference has piloted having four district superintendents rather than five—with churches in the Big Waters District shared between them. Meanwhile, Bishop Lanette Plambeck and the Bishop’s Leadership Team (BLT) spent close to a year exploring redistricting possibilities and recommended the move from five to four districts. In late May, members of the 2024 Minnesota Annual Conference Session overwhelmingly voted in favor of the shift. The new district boundaries were set by Bishop Lanette Plambeck and the Cabinet, in consultation with the BLT. The four districts will be served by four superintendents—to be called “conference superintendents” going forward.

The initial impetus for going to four districts was to reduce costs in recognition of financial realities facing the conference, but there are additional benefits that have shaped the shift as well: creating strategic alignment around our shared mission, addressing the metro-Greater Minnesota divide that conference constituents have named, and investing in innovation. The change provides new opportunities to live into our gospel imperatives to grow in love of God and neighbor, reach new people, and heal a broken world.

The superintendents voiced enthusiasm about their new districts and the breadth of geography that each one will cover.

“We have the opportunity, in this new structure, to develop relationships between the Twin Cities area and Greater Minnesota,” said Rev. Michelle Hargrave, superintendent of the new River Bluffs District. “We’ve already begun talking about possible pulpit exchanges and connections across the district. I am also excited about the added diversity that comes with this change.”

Rev. Becky Jo Messenbrink, who will begin her role as a superintendent on July 1 when the new districts take effect, echoed that sentiment.

“I look forward to serving the clergy and churches in the Headwaters District,” she said. “Our diverse settings are our strength and something to be valued. We have much to learn from one another about the variety of expressions for following Jesus.”

The superintendents are also excited about the new names of the districts they will be leading—which were suggested by conference constituents and chosen by the BLT and the Cabinet.

When Rev. Laurie Kantonen heard the name of her district—Aurora Sky—her first thought was how frequent and widespread the aurora borealis has been this year. More people in more places have had the opportunity to see and appreciate the beauty of this night sky phenomena. But Kantonen also noted that you have to be paying attention to catch this wonder as it comes in the dark of night.

“I have often heard that God does some of God’s most amazing work in the dark,” she said. “I think we have so much opportunity in The United Methodist Church going forward, but we need to pay attention and watch for what God is doing in our midst.”

Bishop Lanette said when she visited each of the five current districts last year, both clergy and laity voiced concern about a perceived disconnect that seemed to separate the Twin Cities metro area from the rest of the conference. Their input motivated her to design a way forward that would help address that gap.

“I believe the four new districts provide an opportunity to close that gap and invite each district into new and renewed relationships that will foster unity, support, innovation, and mission effectiveness within the Minnesota Conference,” she said. “I am looking forward to the varied ways each district will embrace a new way forward and embody what it means to grow as disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world.”
